

Three Candidates File For Mayor

Hot Campaign For Village Offices Is Launched at Mokena

Within the past week the Mokena village political pot has begun to boil and a very close and hotly contested election is in view for the next month. Election day comes on Tuesday, April 16th.

The big fight is being centered on the office of president of the village board for which office three candidates are in the field.

Edward Marti, present incumbent is a candidate for re-election. Whitney Carter, Rock Island telegraph operator and John Palda, former ice cream parlor operator have also tossed their hats in the ring for the same office.

The contest is not confined only to the head of the village, but the village trustees are also in a race to the finish. Those who are seeking to be elected are Albert Braun, W. C. Schmuhl, John Balaz, J. G. Oswald, Philip Hacker, R. Hensel, George Koeller, Jr., Fred Rauch, J. H. Nordsell, Walter Olson, Lloyd Warning.

Paul J. Roesner, present village clerk who is a candidate for re-election has no opposition.

March 12, was the last day for filing petitions and most of the petitions were filed at the eleventh hour. All in the race are in for a real race and each one is determined to win, so a very lively election is in prospect.

Garden Clubs

Oppose Wolf Road Route

Societies for the Preservation of wild flowers and Women's Clubs are protesting to the county and state highway officials against the straight road being followed in the paving of Wolf road from the Hickory creek bridge to the Lincoln highway. They are urging the route Mr. C. M. Cleveland is offering. It is understood that the Joliet Garden Club is circulating petitions protesting against the use of the straight road.

The advocates of the straight route point out that the reason why this route was chosen was due to the refusal of Mr. Cleveland at one time to dedicate a right of way on the westerly route which he now offers free. Mr. Cleveland refused to consider the westerly route at the time County engineer Glen T. Fletcher and Fred A. Francis, the chairman of the Will County Bond Issue wanted the road to go that way. Mr. Cleveland's refusal was on the ground that he intended to build a house on the north side of the Lincoln highway and the westerly Wolf road routing would interfere with the proposed home site. After this turn down the straight route was chosen.

The Wolf road boosters feel it would be a far more patriotic move to quit squabbling about the right of way going straight and build the road and give needed employment to the needy of this section so they can support themselves, than to protest the destruction of a few trees and plants which in course of time will decay and die while a paved road would serve the people of this section for generations to come.

If the Joliet business people want the trade of the Mokena and Frankfort territory the clubs of the city should not hinder Mokena from securing the much needed connection with the Lincoln highway.

Error Delays Wolf Road Case

The hearing on the Wolf road injunction case which was to have been heard before Master in Chancery John J. Wellnitz on Monday of this week, was called off when it was discovered that the judge who had assigned this case to the Master had made an error and had assigned the wrong case. The date for the hearing of the Wolf road case may be fixed next week according to attorney A. H. Krusemark, representing the county.

Mokena Team Loses And Wins With Extra Large Scores

The Mokena Basketball Team has been playing with some high scores the past week. Last Friday night the Mokena team was trimmed by the Joliet team at Joliet to the tune of 136 to 5, but on Sunday afternoon they redeemed themselves by defeating the Wilton Center team at Mokena with a score of 126 to 26.

REHABILITATION TO BE DISCUSSED AT NEW LENOX

Citizens of Will County have an opportunity on Tuesday evening, March 12, to hear Dr. Martin H. Bickham, director of program planning for the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission in a discussion of the current relief situation, it was announced today by Fred A. Francis, Will County Supervisor of New Lenox.

The meeting, which is sponsored by citizens of New Lenox, will convene at 7:30 p. m. in the New Lenox School Auditorium. A large attendance of business and civic leaders and public officials of the county is expected by those in charge as Dr. Bickham is not only well qualified to discuss the Illinois relief program because of his present direct connection with the state relief administration, but is a leading national authority on work relief.

In his address, Dr. Bickham is expected to bring an important message to those who are interested in the relief program as it is now being developed throughout the state and to analyze many of the present day relief problems in their relationship to conditions now existent in Will County.

Because of his work in planning the expanded work relief program in Illinois since termination of the CWA last spring, Dr. Bickham is particularly familiar with the development of this program, its problems, aims, and purposes. Since becoming director of program planning for the Commission, he has travelled extensively throughout the state studying the many factors affecting the state's relief problem. In making these studies of the social and economic backgrounds of the various sections of the state, he has conferred with public officials, business and civic leaders and with persons on relief rolls, and has consulted original sources of material on agricultural and industrial conditions. He will use many of these first hand studies as a foundation for his address in New Lenox.

In addition to the address by Dr. Bickham Lawrence Wood will discuss the Federal Housing Act. There will also be music by the New Lenox "Dionne" quintuplets.

Don't miss this meeting.

Tender Farewell Party to Pastor

Sunday evening, Trinity Congregation tendered a farewell party to its beloved pastor, Wm. Greve and family, who has accepted the call as City Missionary. The congregation assembled in great numbers at the school, almost every family being represented, a humorous program had been arranged the choir sang several selections, and a band amused the large audience with its improvised music. The school children enacted a congregation meeting such as was never held before. A purse was collected as a remembrance of dear old Bachelor's Grove.

The pastor in a few well chosen words expressed his sincerest gratitude for all kindness he received during his stay of 18 years in their midst. After a fine lunch was served to all, one after another said farewell to their pastor and wished him the Lord's blessings for his future work.

Mr. Arnold had placed toast bread and puffed rice in the cage and the mouse ate nearly all of the food and died shortly afterward.

Mokena Home Mysteriously Attacked

Mrs. Joseph Hayden of Mokena had a rather exciting time last Sunday night. She was at home alone with her son Donny. She heard a car drive up to the house and stop. She heard the car door slam and the car drove away. She thought some friends were coming, but when no one came to the door, she went out on the porch but could not see any one about the car nor the car. She went back into the house.

About twenty minutes later, Mrs. Hayden reported there was a terrific crash against the front part of the house and a flower pot hanging near the window was hurled half way across the room by the force of the jar.

Thoroughly frightened, she took her little son and started to run to the John Walsh home across the way. In her hurry she failed to see a low wire fence and ran into it. She was tripped and in falling sustained a number of scratches.

The next morning a big rock was found beneath the window and a deep dent was noticed on the window frame. Mrs. Hayden is at a loss to account for this mysterious attack on her home.

Will County Schools Have Huge Sum Coming From State

Schools in Will county have, overdue and in default from the state common school fund, a total of $204,941.59. The state still owes Will County $124,463.02 on the distribution for 1931, 1932, and 1933. This shortage is caused chiefly by delinquencies in Cook county on state taxes formerly levied on property.

On top of this comes a second deficiency. The state is running eight months late on its state school fund paid out of the sales tax. It is delinquent $7,000,000 and Will county's share of this, long overdue, should be $80,478.57. These two sums make the total of $204,941.59 due Will county.

Adding insult to injury, so to speak, Cook County which is the primary cause of more than half of the trouble, is the only county in Illinois that has no important sum due from the state school fund formerly raised by property taxes.

Cook county got most of "its" ahead of all other counties by the clever expedient of getting its warrants, or orders, "in full" from the state and deducting most of its state school fund before turning over its tax collections to the state. This was done in spite of the fact that Cook County has been a full year behind other parts of the state in tax payments.

Henry Bechstein Dies; Hundreds Attend Final Rites Held Mon.

Henry Bechstein, aged 64 years, 11 months and 15 days, died in the Harvey hospital, Friday morning, March 8 at 11 o'clock. At his bedside, were his wife and family. He was fully conscious to the end, recognizing each member of the family and even inquiring about his youngest grandson, Melvin Schult.

Though he looked robust and healthy, Mr. Bechstein was afflicted with asthma, which caused him much discomfort at times.

On January 13 of this year, he suddenly became ill and was at the point of death, but he recovered from this attack to such an extent that it was thought he would convalesce favorably, but other attacks set in periodically, until finally a severe attack of hiccoughs caused him much pain and anguish.

Mr. Bechstein told his pastor, Rev. Chas. H. Hedler, "I am not afraid to die, for the Lord is my Shepherd and is with me."

Henry Christian Bechstein, son of Henry Bechstein and his wife Martha, nee Keuch, was born March 23, 1870 in Frankfort township. His parents were members of the St. John Evangelical church at Mokena. He was baptised and confirmed in this church by the late Rev. C. Schaub.

On December 15, 1892, he was united in marriage to Miss Emma Alvina Andres. They located on a farm near Tinley Park.

To this union were born three children, Mary, now Mrs. George Schult, Kathrine and Henry, all of whom survive him.

His wife, being a member of the German M. E. church of Tinley Park, Mr. Bechstein worshipped with her in that church. He joined that church and became an active member, serving in various offices and at the time of his death, he was a member of the board of trustees of that church.

The deceased was a deeply sincere man, of quiet unassuming manner, kind and generous. All who knew him, held him in high esteem.

Surviving, are his wife, two daughters, one son, six grandchildren, two half-sisters, Mrs. Bertha Selma Nelson of Frankfort, and many other relatives and a host of friends.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the late home to the Tinley Park German M. E. church, with burial being made in the cemetery adjoining the church.

Over 500 people attended the funeral services, attesting to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Rev. Chas. H. Hedler, pastor of the church officiated and assisting him were the Rev. C. F. Schellhase, pastor of the Frankfort M. E. church and Rev. Mr. Jochum of Blue Island, a former pastor of the Tinley Park M. E. church.

The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

"I NEVER dream of an airplane crash that I don't hear of one the next morning," state Eleanor Smith, who possesses youthful beauty as well as bravery and skill as an aviatrix.

"Last year, when I was making an altitude attempt, I thought my motor had been cut off 26,000 feet above the ground. I reached down my hand to try the throttle, and I accidentally turned off the oxygen gauge.

"Well, that has just the same effect upon a person as doing this to her—." Here Miss Smith graphically sliced her throat with the blade of her hand and made a shivery, sizzling sound as one makes when choking.

"While I was unconscious, my plane dropped. I regained consciousness just as it was nosing for the ground. I was too near to glide to a landing. I had the immediate choice of hitting a brick wall or falling into the reservoir, and probably drowning, or of heading for a space between two tall trees.

"Now, I remembered that the night before I had dreamed of a crash. I knew what that meant for me; I knew I must take no chances; I must do anything to avert such a catastrophe. To fly between the trees was my only chance of escape. I had enough experience to know that if the plane flew between them the impact would slice off the wings, turn the plane over and wreck it.

"So I turned the plane over deliberately, from within, and saved damage to it, instead of allowing it to resist the turn and doubtless be shattered."

"If it had not been for that dream I might have taken more chances with those trees."

"A COUPLE of months before my son was born my mother died. Mother and I had been very dear to each other; we had lived together as great friends; I was terribly hurt by her death. I became resentful of life, doubtful of a God.

"One night my husband and I opened the French doors to our bedroom and retired early. I could not sleep for fleeting and tormenting thoughts of my mother's death, the reason for it, the loneliness of it.

"Suddenly I heard a strange rattling sound. My husband, after I awakened him, heard nothing. He was more than kind; he said I only imagined the sound; that I was nervous, due to my condition. I wanted to remonstrate, for I am a steady person, not given to weeping or to weakness. As soon as he fell asleep I heard the sound again. This time it was a rattling sound, as if some one were shaking the ceiling.

"When my husband responded this time to my alarm he arose and searched the room. He lighted the heavy marble lamp, which, together with various boxes and books, stood upon the night table between our beds. No sign of anything or anyone strange could be found.

"I promised not to disturb him again. All became quiet once more. But only for a moment.

"The night table between our beds, heavily laden, arose from its position and crashed to the floor, breaking the lamp and boxes. It was as if some one had lifted it and smashed it upon the floor. The crash was terrific.

"This time my husband did not refute me. He verified everything I heard and saw. He jumped to his feet and turned on the lights. Whatever had caused the crash had vanished.

"I have never been able to interpret the meaning or the mystery of this occurrence."

Pitch of the Pine Tree

Hardens; Becomes Amber

Have you ever noticed masses of pitch or resin clinging to the bark of a pine tree, and thought how much like amber it looked? And no wonder, for amber is merely pitch or resin changed somewhat and hardened by countless years beneath the earth.

The variety of pine which produced most amber once grew where the Baltic and the North seas now lie. This land was gradually submerged. Later, violent storms would cast large pieces of the amber up on the shore. The ancients valued it highly and credited it with mysterious powers, chiefly because it becomes electrified when it is rubbed. In fact, our word electricity is derived from elektron, the Greek name for amber.

Today some amber is still obtained by picking up fragments washed ashore by the waves, but most of it is mined. The chief source is East Prussia, although it is found in small quantities in many other countries.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Lesson for March 17

PETER DELIVERED FROM PRISON

LESSON TEXT—Acts 12:1-19.
GOLDEN TEXT—But prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him. Acts 12:5b.
PRIMARY TOPIC—How Peter Was Freed From Prison.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How Peter Was Delivered From Prison.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Prayer Helps.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Power of United Prayer.

The young church had met and overcome some serious difficulties. She first had to face religious persecution at the hands of Jews. Then came internal troubles as to the support of certain widows. The separating wall of Pharisaical legalism was broken down in the admission of Gentiles into the church, but finally she had to meet the naked sword of civil authority. Through all these tests she was more than conqueror.

1. Peter's Imprisonment (vv. 1-4).

1. By whom (v. 1). Herod, the grandson of the wicked Herod who slew the innocent children of Bethlehem. His half-sister, Herodias, secured the death of John the Baptist.

2. The reason (v. 3). It was to gain the favor of the Jews. Herod was not a Jew but an Edomite. Therefore, he knew that his success was dependent upon his having the good will of the Jews. He seems not particularly to have hated the church, but to have loved popularity, for the sake of which he manifested a deep sympathy for degenerate Judaism. Since the church had so developed as to be a successful rival of Judaism, he saw an opportunity to curry favor with the Jews by putting forth his hands against it.

3. The method (v. 4). He was arrested, put into prison and guarded by sixteen soldiers, one group of four for each watch of the night. Humanly speaking it was impossible to escape. They had doubtless heard of Peter's escape from jail before, so they thought they would take no risks this time. However, they reckoned without God.

II. The Church of God in Prayer (v. 5).
The church was at a crisis. James, one of the brethren of the church, was dead, and Peter, the most prominent of all, was in prison. In this desperate strait, they betook themselves to prayer. This was a noteworthy prayer.

1. It was unto God. All true prayer is unto God.

2. It was united prayer. There is peculiar power in the united prayer of God's people.

3. It was more than unceasing prayer. It was the intensely earnest desire of the soul stretched toward God.

4. It was definite prayer. They specifically offered prayer to God for Peter.

III. Peter Delivered by an Angel (vv. 6-11).

This occurred the night before Herod's plan to make a public display of him.

1. Peter sleeping (v. 6). This shows that he was not disturbed over the matter. The Lord keeps in perfect peace those whose minds are stayed on him (Isa. 26:3).

2. Peter leaves the prison (vv. 7-10). A heavenly light shone in the prison. The angel smote Peter on the side. The chains fell off. Peter put on his clothes and passed by one guard after another, through the iron gate and into the city. The whole transaction was orderly and leisurely, showing that God is not in a hurry.

3. The effect upon Peter (v. 11). Although the matter was so wonderful to Peter, who thought himself in a vision, when he came to himself he knew that God had miraculously delivered him from Herod's wicked hands.

IV. Unconscious Unbelief (vv. 12-19).

1. The behavior of Peter and the church (vv. 12-17). Peter went to the house of Mary and knocked. The knock was answered by Rhoda, who was so overjoyed that she forgot to open the gate, and went right in and told them that Peter was at the gate. The disciples were not prepared for such good news, even accusing her of madness. She, undaunted, insisted. They offered as an explanation that perhaps it might be Peter's guardian angel in his likeness. Peter rehearsed unto them the Lord's dealing with him.

2. The behavior of the soldiers (vv. 18, 19). There was great agitation among them as to what had become of Peter. This was a serious matter, since they were responsible for him. Not being able to account for Peter's escape, Herod commanded that they be put to death. After this, Herod went down to Caesarea, where he was adored as a god. Because he arrogated this honor to himself, the Lord smote him. Herod died, but the word of the Lord grew and multiplied.

How to Love God

To love God is to love his character. For instance, God is purity. And to be pure in thought and look, to turn away from unallowed books and conversation, to abhor the moments in which we have not been pure, is to love God.

Good Rules of Life

It is a good thing to die with the blessed consciousness of never having taken advantage of another's infirmity, or poverty, or ignorance; to die able to say that one has not extended the empire of evil on the earth.

Washington.—The wide apprehension over the increasing cost of food and the prediction face of the Department of Agriculture that food prices will ascend something like 11 per cent more before July 1, has given rise to a new problem for the Agricultural Adjustment administration. It threatens to be serious, as food questions always are serious, and as this aspect of the situation becomes better understood its political importance is becoming greater.
New Problem by Secretary Wallace for AAA

There can be no doubt that the New Deal program for raising prices has had its fullest effect on the food prices and therein lies the basis for the trouble now brewing. To make the problem more serious from the political standpoint, increased food prices are felt first and most extensively in the metropolitan areas. It is in these same areas that the greatest number of unemployed live and must be cared for. It becomes plain then that increased food prices are directly interwoven with the problem of relief and it is difficult to predict what mass psychology may be developed from such a circumstance.

There are two sides of the problem from the political standpoint. One of them relates directly to the plans for providing food and affects directly those persons whose employment has been small and who have only limited amounts of money with which to maintain life. The second phase involves the future of the Agricultural Adjustment administration and affects directly the political situation that has for some time revolved about the focal point of the principle of attempting to manage prices as is being done under the AAA.

Connected with the latter phase, and likely to suffer from hard-riding politicians, is the movement within the AAA to broaden its power.

It will be recalled that last year Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture and a leading brain trust, sought to force through congress a series of amendments to the adjustment act which, in the view of many observers, would make the regimentation of farmers a compulsory instead of a voluntary proposition as is now the case. In other words, according to critics of the Tugwell plan, the amendments that were offered and defeated in congress last year would make the Department of Agriculture a veritable dictator over the agricultural industries in this country. Although Mr. Tugwell does not figure in the picture so much this year, the same amendments have been put forward and a considerable amount of pressure is being exerted to obtain an enactment as law. Having defeated them last year, critics of the program, headed by Senator Byrd (Dem., Va.), are mustering in full strength to squelch the amendments again.

While it is yet too early to hazard a guess concerning the results of this battle, attention may be called at this time to some of the potentialities of such a legislative fight. In these debates lies real danger to whatever good there is in the Adjustment act, according to the best information I can get.

The danger is to be observed in this direction: Those who criticize the Tugwell amendments, though they do not now bear his name, are not going to confine their verbal fire to those proposals. They will go, as they did last year, considerably beyond the scope of the proposed legislation. They will attack any and all features of the whole adjustment program and it is not unlikely that their criticism will result in tearing down some of the admittedly good features of this phase of the New Deal.

I have heard considerable comment to the effect that if the brain trusters who are now promoting the new or revised AAA amendments would use good political judgment, they would not press for action on their proposals at this time. In other words, political commentators are to the effect that the brain trusters are diving headlong into a whirlpool in which they may find themselves unable to swim. It is plainly a combination of circumstances with which they are confronted. Those were enumerated above. To many observers, therefore, it appears most foolhardy for the supporters of this extreme legislation to go further in their attempt to "strengthen the Adjustment Act" at a time when plainly Mr. Roosevelt does not have complete control of congress and at a time when the strongest tide of opposition to regimentation is running.

Question of Politics

It is to be remembered with respect to the legislative situation that there will be opposition, as indeed there already has been opposition developed from among the processors. It should be explained that the revised amendments would place all of the processors under licenses from the Department of Agriculture. Without such licenses they become the equivalent of bootleggers in the prohibition days and no one can foretell what the reaction would be to this. My understanding is that there are something like one hundred thousand of these processors in the various lines of agricultural commodities coming under the jurisdiction of the Adjustment act. In addition to the processors, about nine hundred thousand retailers handling these products are subjected to control, directly or indirectly, by AAA licenses. Consequently, we see more than a million who could do business only if the Department of Agriculture saw fit to grant licenses. And when I say the Department of Agriculture, in law, it simmers down to the secretary of agriculture. Secretary Wallace's policies and his personal attitude, I believe, are not such as to give cause for alarm respecting administration of these proposed licensing provisions. Yet, it has been freely suggested that a time may come when the secretary of agriculture will be neither as good nor as wise as Mr. Wallace. You can make your own guess as to the possibilities under the regime of a secretary of agriculture who was not big enough for the job.

These circumstances and conditions, in the minds of many observers here, point only to one thing now: the Adjustment act and the program drafted thereunder is not as popular as it was before it went into operation. Judging from correspondence received by representatives and senators, the Adjustment program is actually repugnant to some sections. I believe it only fair to state, however, that the Adjustment program is not blamed wholly for the increase in prices but always in times like these and under circumstances like those to which attention has been directed there has to be a goat. Apparently that goat is going to be the Department of Agriculture and its step-child, the Agricultural Adjustment administration.

While all of the newspapers are printing many columns in review of two years of the

Garner Overlooked

Roosevelt administration and much attention is being paid to President Roosevelt, it seems to me that one stalwart of the administration—Vice President John N. Garner—is being somewhat overlooked. It seems to me, also, that this should not be the case because all observers agree that Mr. Garner has placed the vice presidency of the United States on something of a new plane.

Much levity always has been directed at any man holding the job of vice president. It is true that the vice president is seldom, if ever, out front, as the expression is. With Mr. Garner, however, it has been decidedly different. I believe, from all of the discussions that I have heard since his election, Mr. Garner has filled, and is filling, a very constructive post in this administration.

Although Mr. Garner weighs about the same and is no taller; while he dresses much as he did before and his wit and humor is much the same, it certainly can be said that he is a much bigger man in the eyes of the people of this country than he was a few years ago. In other words, given the opportunity, Mr. Garner has performed in a way that probably will record him in history as among the outstanding individuals who have filled that second ranking elective post in our government.

It is not generally known, I think, how much influence Mr. Garner wields in the Roosevelt administration. He sits with Mr. Roosevelt and the other members in the cabinet meetings and there is no doubt among observers here that those men lean upon the long experience which the vice president has had.

The port of Baltimore, Md., witnessed an unusual sight the other day, arrival of a shipload of corn from Argentina. It was the first full cargo ever to arrive in that port and caused some observers to remark that it appeared to be "carrying coals to Newcastle."

We Import Corn!

This would have been true under conditions such as we used to have in this country before the inauguration of the Agricultural Adjustment administration. The AAA has made the difference. Last year, the AAA set about reducing the corn acreage in this country because it was the conviction of the New Deal that production had been too great. Twenty per cent curtailment was decreed. To accomplish that end, the AAA offered to pay farmers at the rate of thirty cents per bushel for not growing corn. The plan worked as it might naturally be supposed to have worked and there was the expected curtailment of production.

But nature took a hand and the drought settled down over the vast corn producing areas of the Middle West. So great was this disaster that there is not now sufficient corn to meet domestic requirements. Importation of corn resulted, and the port of Baltimore had the novel experience of seeing corn shipped in instead of out. Secretary Wallace has defended the AAA policies on the ground that they were exceedingly flexible and could be used to increase or decrease production as conditions required. It seems, however, that corn has a habit of growing only during the summer months and if the production in that period is insufficient the winter months must witness a shortage.

Age-Old Memories Stir

Merry Laughing Spring

Moonlight falling in pearly, ghostly radiance over the hill in Hardscrabble forest touches candleberry and sweet-fern with opalescence and mirrors age-old stars in the fern-lipped bowl of the Laughing Spring.

The Spring, which finds something funny in its age-long life, chuckling constantly at some comic joke, remembers the coming of the Ice age, its imprisonment under the ice sheet, and the herds of mastodons migrating through the valley after it. It remembers when wild animals were dominant along the Hudson, and the timid coming of Red Men from the West, spying out the land, taking it away from bear, deer, moose and wolf.

At its lip white settlers stooped to drink, listening for war-whoops. It remembers the Dutch, the English, Continentals marching past to the battle of White Plains, and boys of the Neperhan marching away to the Civil war.

Hunters, hobos, pursued men and women, hikers, lovers, have all visited the ancient fountain, but still the Spring is the youngest and merriest thing in all the Hardscrabble forest, for it still remembers how to laugh. —New York World Telegram.

WHEN THE DOCTOR SAYS
YOU HAVE "TOO MUCH ACID"

Health, your doctor will tell you, is based on a delicate balance in the system between alkalinity and acidity. Modern day habits, especially the foods we eat, destroy this balance by creating excess acids. Watch for acid danger signals!

In the mouth acids attack enamel, bring tooth decay and bad breath. In the stomach they attack delicate linings and bring sick headaches, indigestion, gas and constipation, and often chronic disorders.

Neutralize excess acids at once with Milnesia Wafers—original Milk of Magnesia in tasty tablet form. One Wafer before bedtime, and the whole digestive system, from mouth and gums to intestines, is kept sweet and clean and clear of these harmful acids. Thousands of physicians now recommend Milnesia instead of old-fashioned liquid Milk of Magnesia.

Economical, too! Each Milnesia package contains more Magnesium Hydroxide than all other liquid forms.

A STUDY IN CONTRASTS

Compare the present-day lot of the average World War doughboy and the man who bought Liberty Bonds instead of shouldering a gun. For example, take the case of the wealthy citizen who invested $10,000 in the purchase of Liberty Bonds. For the use of that $10,000, Uncle Sam has paid this man a "bonus" of $450.00 annually, in the form of interest. If these particular bonds have not yet been recalled by the Treasury of the United States this super-patriot has received a bonus of $7,650.00.

While this individual languished in the hinterlands of safety, without suffering the slightest physical discomfort, the average doughboy invested his health, his strength and his life in his obligation as a citizen, for one dollar per day.

When someone suggests that this doughboy is also entitled to "interest on his investment," in the form of an economic adjustment, the Liberty Bond buyers of 1918 are horrified. They accuse the veteran of "selling his patriotism," a thought that is wholly repugnant to such sensitive souls.

Veterans in general are being defiled and defamed because they are persistent in their demands for immediate cash payment of the so-called bonus. Forced by unemployment to seek payment of this acknowledged debt, veterans today are opposed to the theory of waiting 27 years, or until 1945, before a settlement is made.

Strange as it may seem, the veterans' most vicious opponents are those who are still receiving an annual bonus for use of money they loaned to the government in the purchase of Liberty Bonds.

The situation presents an amazing paradox—a spectacle that is certain to arouse the wrath and indignation of the American public when the full significance of this injustice makes itself felt.

NEW CHEVROLET

OILING FEATURE

A unique method of flooding connecting rod bearings with a surplus of lubricating oil at high engine speeds is one of the new mechanical features of the Chevrolet engines in all 1935 models. The new oiling system assures an extra supply of oil to the bearings when most needed, that is, when the car is being driven above 70 m. p. h. for long periods.

At lower engine speeds, lubrication of the crankpins is provided by oil picked up from troughs by dipper in the connecting rods. The oil pan troughs are kept filled by the oil pump, which feeds fresh oil through nozzles opening below the surface level.

At high engine speeds, as the pump pressure increases, oil is forced from these nozzles with sufficient force to cause high pressure streams of oil to be thrown clear across the crankcase, directly in the paths of the connecting rod dipper. Because of the high speed of the dipper as the engine turns over 3000 or more r. p. m., they hit the solid stream of oil with so much force that tremendous pressure is created. The oil flows through the outlet in the top of the dipper and is forced through the deep grooves in the connecting rod bearing. The force of the impact of the oil stream provides positive lubrication to the entire surface of the bearing, and clears away any obstruction in the oil grooves, much as a high pressure stream of water from a fire engine rips roofing from a building.

NIAGARI GOSSIP

By the Dark Shadow

The Niagara's press agent, the "Dark Shadow" has been wondering who's been taking up so much of Helen Hirsch's time lately. Come on Helen introduce him. Are you afraid? Here's a tip girls! His last name is Morgan and he has a brother who keeps Eileen Mohr's complexion very red.

Kate has plenty on her mind lately too. What was the matter with the boy friend last Saturday night Kate? Oh that's too bad. I'd make him pay and pay if I were you.

If you don't mind answering Lorets where were you on the night of March first? Was the back seat crowded or didn't you mind?

Who's the boy that likes to drive Fern home at night? Oh yes, he's a bit bashful yet, but give him time. Thornton College won't let him stay long.

We wonder if Bettv's real excuse for staying in the city is just that she likes her cousin's company. You can bet not! Take it from one who knows.

Lois Klepper's got a way with the boys so hold onto your boy friends, girls.

Imagine our little country lass, Marion Moss, playing up to Pearl La Londe's city slickers. Watch out Moss and don't bring Pearl's wrath upon you.

The way things look the poor Niagatri's will have to dig down deep into the treasury for silverware. What for? Why Marion and Jack of course. Beware of competition you two.

Studebaker roadster and a blond curly headed organ player (not grinder) seem to be Eleanor's weakness now.

Our little blond friend Shirley is growing up and will the boys tumble wait and see!

A certain little dark eyed lassie's complexion has turned from white to rosy red. Oh it's not what you're thinking. She has the measles. It looks as if all the town boys will have to bury their lonesome hearts for a fortnight.

What's the matter with our absent members? Did you forget the old town for the big city? Let's hear from you.

Garden Club News

The regular meeting of the Jr. Garden Club was held at the school Saturday, March 9, 1935.

Our little president was absent due to her recent operation but we hope to have her with us again soon. (Norma Schluter was also on the sick list. We missed both of these buds. Joy Berg was welcomed as a new member. She was very happy to be with us.

Mrs. Rogers our dear instructor had an interesting lesson on the Violet this is the flower for the month of March.

Mrs. Rogers read a history of Tinley Park to the buds, we all enjoyed this very much.

Velma Lorenz served as president Dorothy Campbell as secretary, Mildred Flannery as treasurer.

When Velma was preparing the refreshments, Dorothy Campbell was in charge of the program.

The buds played a game of flowers. There were fifteen pictures and Marie Bettenhausen was lucky to have all of these correct. She received a trowel as her prize. Marie can hardly wait so as to use her new little trowel in her garden. She was studying the display of flower seeds in her daddy's store, wondering what flowers she would like to have in her garden this summer.

Velma served cake and candy. We also remembered Irma, Norma and Mrs. Funk.

The buds are planning to have some lovely scrap-books ready for the flower show to be held some time in 1935.

No Long Debates

On Measures To Increase Taxes

Members of the Legislature who expected long debates and heated arguments over the proposed bills for increasing taxes for relief purposes found the past week's work very quiet.

On Tuesday night the minority party held a caucus dinner at the University Club in Springfield. The Republican members who served on the Executive Committees reported on the Governor's conferences. It was decided by the caucus that the minority party should resist all efforts to increase taxes until the State Budget, long overdue, (a statute provides that the Budget must be submitted within four weeks after the convening of the General Assembly) had been prepared for consideration. The Chairman of the caucus, Representative R. J. Branson of Centralia, was delegated to present to the Governor a request that the Budget be presented at the earliest possible time. In the meantime, opposition to the Bills was being expressed by a number of prominent downstate Democrats.

On Wednesday, two hours after the time designated for the hearing on the taxation bills and the bills to abolish the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission or to strip it of its powers, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the whole. Representative Schaackenberg put through a motion that no action should be taken on the taxation bills until the relief administration problems had been settled. The entire afternoon with a small attendance of representatives was given over to a discussion of the bills affecting the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission.

On Thursday the sponsors of the bills attempted to have the bills advanced to third reading, but the lack of a quorum made their efforts impossible.

More objections, judging from the letters to various representatives, have been received on the proposed increase in the gasoline taxes, with objections to the taxes on occupations and professions running second.

It is rumored that very little will be done in the Assembly until after the Chicago Mayoralty election.

Up to date no administration appropriation measures have been submitted. The bills providing four year terms of office for all municipal officials in the State were not called up by the introducer of the bill, Representative Thomas P. Sinent of Rock Island. These bills will probably not be passed soon enough to make them effective for the coming April elections.

A bill which would effect many people residing in the suburbs around Chicago is House Bill No. 188, introduced by J. G. Ryan, which requires officers and employees of all cities, counties, park districts and school districts of 500,000 inhabitants or over to reside therein. One year is given nonresidents to comply with the provisions in the bill. This bill, if passed, would according to many persons affected by a measure of this type cause great hardship on those owning property, if they were forced to sell at the present market. It is said that when a similar law was proposed for New York City, Mayor LaGuardia said that he did not care where his employees slept so long as they did not sleep at their desks.

By Bernice T. Van der Vries,
Representative 7th District

T. Y. O. Tattler

Greetings my fran's!

The regular meeting of the usual time and at the usual place. It was decided for next meeting to have a little extra entertainment in the form of a pinocle party. So all members and friends be sure to be present at the next meeting.

Well so much for that. Here's more news.

"It takes but little to amuse the simple". Especially when the boys sit and recite. "This little piggy went to war—" and so forth and so on, on their fingers. Isn't that so Melvy?

That platinum blonde member of the club is accommodating to the girls on roller skates. And say ask his "wife" what was the matter with him at the dance Saturday night.

We hear that three little boys had a very enjoyable time Thursday evening of the past week. Especially with G. G., R. H., and M. H. Games were played, especially "Pussy in the Corner", and refreshments were served. Then bidding adieu the three boys returned sadly home again. Some fun.

MEASLES Keep Out. This sign sadly greets several of the boys as they turn in at a well known door. Sadly they turn and think of the two weeks they will have to wait until they can again enter that door, with that big red sign removed. Ah it's a sad tale indeed, but these boys have many sympathizers. We hope that these two weeks will not be too trying on them. Also we hope that the big red sign will not be tacked upon their own doors. We offer our consolation to you Ruth and to your many admirers.

Ah'll be see'in yuh.

Today.
There is a thing called yesterday, but that is only the dust-bin at the door, into which we cast our refuse, our failures, our worn-out souls. There is a thing called tomorrow, bursting with far better things than those which we have discarded. But in today the whole passionate force of the universe is poured—and therefore today is marvellous.—S. P. B. Mals.

Pure Milk Association Holds Its Tenth Annual Meeting

During the past year the Pure Milk Association has marketed 1,506,044,297 pounds of milk valued at $25,372,744.14, according to Secretary-Manager D. N. Geyer who made his annual report today (Mar. 12) at the 10th Annual Meeting of the Pure Milk Association.

Of this amount, 1,273,043,329 pounds of basic milk were sold as fluid milk and cream and were valued at $23,169,965.62. The seasonal surplus milk, which was turned into manufacturing channels total 233,000,968 pounds and was sold for $2,202,778.52. The gross price paid to the Association dairy farmers for all milk produced was $1.685 per hundred pounds.

It was reported also that dealer's margins during this past year decreased, while the dairy farmer's marginal returns for his milk increased.

Over 5,000 men and women of the 18,000 membership living in northern Illinois and Indiana, and southern Wisconsin packed the Auditorium theatre for their 10th annual meeting. They had traveled to Chicago on special trains and busses from a radius of 100 miles to attend the yearly meeting of the largest co-operative milk marketing organization in the middle west.

Approximately 360 delegates representing 132 local country organizations of this great membership nominated and elected their Directors for the coming year passed upon the reports of the various departments, and adopted resolutions concerning the Associations policies.

Two new Directors, W. J. Swayer of Gurnee, Ill., and L. A. Markham of Janesville, Wisconsin were elected to fill the places of the retiring Directors, Henry A. Pfister of Prairie View, Illinois, and Harry L. Hook of Brooklyn, Wisconsin. Six Directors were returned by their membership to serve for another two years.

Milk Marketing policies and problems were discussed with more than the usual amount of interest this year in view of the recent action of the Association in breaking away from the AAA and doing business with milk distributors by individual contracts.

W. P. Davis, general manager of the New England Milk Producers Association, delivered the main address of the day, bringing a vigorous message of how the fundamental problems of milk marketing were basically the same on every market throughout the United States.

He traced organization of the New England Milk Producers Association which covers the states of Rhode Island, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire discussing the problems encountered in those markets, revealing a highly competitive milk marketing situation with three different Associations competing for milk sales. He also revealed that the Boston, Mass., Milk Shed receives about 35 per cent of its cream supply from outside of the shed.

Over 500 Pure Milk Association Women gathered in the Gold Room of the Congress Hotel at noon today to hear Miss Mary Sue Wigley, one of America's most outstanding speakers on the farm and home. Mrs. A. B. McConnell of Woodstock, Illinois, acted as chairman.

List what you want she said, "Adopt your policies and set your goal. Be always conscious of it, working steadily toward it always." Let not your standard of living be wealth. Let that wealth be deepness of understanding, and full appreciation of the joys of nature.

An afternoon tea was held in the Auditorium Hotel for the women of the Association, this tea is an annual event, 800 attended.

In the morning, the women had gone "Behind the scenes of a big department store, that they might learn of the complicated inner working of selling merchandise that is not apparent to the buying public.

Spring is on the way so we have chosen this poem as a further reminder,

Spring is Coming.
Pleasant, pleasant spring is here,
Spring to every child so dear!
See the ice! It melts away
In the sun's warm, cheerful ray.
See the little chickadees

Flying all about the trees.
Hear the blue-birds, now they sing!
For they love the pleasant spring!

Soon, when fair and bright the day,
Children out of doors can stray.
Soon the school boys will be seen,
Playing ball upon the green.
Soon, when night comes, mild and still,
You may hear the whip-poor-will.
Oh, what pleasure it does bring
Watching for the pleasant spring.

Soon the robins will be here,
Making music far and near.
Soon the yellow buttercups
On the lawn be springing up.
And the orchard trees will bloom,
And the violets scent our room.
Merry voices, how they'll sing,
In the pleasant time of spring!

SPORT NEWS

Many listeners who heard the broadcast of the Mokena-Lisbon game were surprised at the attitude of the announcer. That he was prejudiced against small town teams was quite evident. After continually commenting on the team's ragged playing he finally explained Lisbon had eleven boys from which to choose it's team, but he didn't mention the limited number from which Mokena draws it's teams.

Well, every knock is a boost so we won't make any comments on that particular announcer's ragged imitation of the "Old Maestro".

The score of the Mokena-Lisbon game was 29 to 14 in favor of Mokena. The next night (Friday) Mokena played Joliet and were defeated by a score of 136 to 5.

Roman Asparagus

THE feasts of ancient Rome are legendary. The old Roman epicures sometimes spent as much as half a million dollars on a single supper. But listen to what even these gourmets of long ago had to put up with, and you will be glad that you are living in the twentieth century with its modern industries, including that of canning.

According to A. Soyer, author of "The Pantropheon or History of Food and its Preparation from the earliest ages of the world," published in 1853, "the cooks of Rome had a method which appears to have been subsequently too much neglected; they chose the finest heads of asparagus and dried them. When wanted for the table, they put them into hot water and boiled them a few minutes. Thanks to this simple process the plant swelled considerably, and passed as being very tender and fine flavored."

Your Modern Choice

Compare that with the delicious modern canned asparagus which would astonish a Roman epicure. There are two varieties of it—green, which is obtainable in No. 2 cans, and white, either the whole spear or the tips of which are canned. The whole spears are graded in the same way, except that there are no Giant or Colossal grades, and there is also a Tiny grade for tips. Stalks are mostly packed in No. 2 1/2 square cans, holding all the way from eight to twelve spears in the Giant grade to from forty-five to sixty spears in the Small grade. Tips are packed in No. 1 square cans, holding all the way from twenty-one to thirty tips in the Mammoth grade to from eighty to a hundred in the Tiny grade.

Canned asparagus is served either hot or cold, and is delicious not only as a vegetable dish, but for salads.*

Housewives Quickly Note Missing Item in Modernly Equipped Kitchen

Many women visitors to A Century of Progress Exposition were filled with envious admiration of this completely equipped modern kitchen.

A telephone which attracted a lot of attention on the opening day of A Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago did so because—it wasn't there!

The absence of the telephone was due to a series of last-minute circumstances, and it was thought at the time that no one would notice it. But those who were in charge of the H. J. Heinz Company's exhibit at the Exposition didn't know the American housewife of today as well as they thought they did.

Colored Instrument Installed

The exhibit showed a series of replicas of kitchens in other lands and in earlier times, contrasted with the attractive and well-equipped kitchen of 1933. As originally featured, this kitchen contained a conveniently located extension telephone, of special color to harmonize with the decorative scheme of the room. But within an hour of the opening of the exhibit, the telephone mysteriously disappeared.

Someone had "lifted" it, and there wasn't sufficient time to procure another instrument of exactly the right shade. Rather than to make use of a black telephone, even temporarily, it was decided to wait for a new instrument of the proper color, it being figured out that with so much to see, especially on the opening day, the absence of the telephone would hardly be noticed.

It "Belonged" There

However, such proved to be far from the case. Before the substitute instrument arrived there was a flood of comments and inquiries. "Your modern kitchen certainly looks complete—except that it should have an extension telephone," commented one alert housewife. "Would not a telephone be convenient in a kitchen of 1933?" asked another. "You have a radio but no telephone!" objected a third. And there were dozens and scores of others who asked bluntly, "Where's the telephone?"

The number and frequency of the inquiries were convincing evidence that, whatever may be the things one may safely omit from a modern kitchen, the telephone is not one of them.

THE STORY OF KI-KI THE CONGO JUNGLES

My name is Ki-Ki: I live in the Jungles. There are a lot of trees, vines, and bushes here, and when we walk under a coconut tree a monkey drops a coconut on our heads. You see our heads are flat, so we can carry things on them. Before we eat, all of us little black boys run out and get a leaf to put our dinner on. Then our father puts our dinner on our leaf plates.

We think it fun to go on a lion hunt. Before we go on a lion hunt we have a ceremony. Then we all dress up. Oh! I forgot that we wear lots of jewelry; that's what makes us beautiful. Then we go on the hunt. When we get the lion killed we have another ceremony around it. Then we drag it home.

Some of the animals down here are: elephants, lions, monkeys, giraffes, and panthers.

Cook County

Corn-Hog Plan

Information meetings on the 1935 program of the corn-hog plan were held at four different locations in Cook County last week. According to our Farm Adviser, O. G. Barrett, it appears a very high percentage of the signers for 1934 will sign the contract and take part in the program in 1935.

The benefit payments in 1935 will be materially reduced. The whole thought of the Adjustment Program is to bring about equity to farmers or what is spoken of as parity which means the raising of price levels to the point where agriculture can buy with its products amounts equivalent to the amount that it could buy with its products in the period 1909 to 1914.

The much discussed processing tax, which many interests other than agriculture are saying is being paid by the farmer, was a provision of the Act designed to bring about these higher levels of prices. The price levels have raised and as they reach parity, we may expect a reduction or a dismissal of the processing tax.

Your choice of laboratory-tested Pittsburg, Ruud, or Lovekin heater

● Install an automatic gas water heater and you'll never have to wait for the water to heat before you do the dishes, take a bath, fill the wash tubs. An abundant supply of hot water for every household job is always on tap—right at the faucet. No matter how much water you use there's always more being heated—automatically. No running up and down cellar stairs, no bother, no fuss.

Visit your nearest Public Service Store. Ask about this liberal new plan. For as little as $1.50 down, the balance in small monthly payments on your gas bill over a 48-month period, you can have the convenience and comforts of an automatic gas water heater. Don't delay. Especially if you are depending now on furnace coils for your hot water supply. When your heating plant is shut down in mild weather you will be without the comfort and convenience of ready hot water. Come in at once. PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

Relief Question

Uppermost Says

Lottie O'Neill

Rep. Lottie Holman O'Neill of the 41st Senatorial District, makes the following interesting comments on happenings in Springfield which are of interest to the citizens of the state as a whole:

The relief question seems to be uppermost just now. This refers to school relief, as well as family relief. As a matter of fact, they are so closely related that one must be handled with the other in mind. Hungry children cannot avail themselves of education opportunities.

Believing that a program of economy should accompany the request to our people for further revenue in the form of increased taxes, I have launched a plan for a change in the administration of family relief, providing for closer supervision and eliminating the remote control by the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission with its attendant huge salaries, large numbers of paid case workers and much waste in the purchasing of supplies. I am also advocating cash relief, believing that this is in the direction of economy, as shown by the experience of other states. Certainly something along the line of change in the method of distribution of relief will be approved at this session.

In reply to those who are alarmed about the school situation, personally, I regret that their seems to be a casual attitude toward public education on the part of the present administration. A commission has been appointed by the Governor, consisting of twenty people to make a survey of the state and ascertain school needs. Their duty shall be to report recommendations to the present session in time for action. I am not optimistic about the outcome of this venture.

The program of the State Teachers' Association, including the back due $7,000,000 on the distributive fund, should have prompt action. There is no need for a review of this, it is an obligation of the state which should be taken care of at once. The bills are in the appropriation committee and hearing set for Tuesday, March 12th. If they are reported out on the floor, the school people of the state must help to get the sufficient number of votes to have them become effective at once.

Other subjects, commanding the attention of our people at the present time are Old Age Pensions, Reduction in Motor Vehicle Licenses, reduction in interest on small loans, the various tax bills, which are being delayed, pending a change in the method of distribution of relief.

S. B. 56, the Gun Bill has raised considerable objections.

Another bill, which has caused many people to write to me is the bill providing that those people employed in Chicago as teachers or otherwise, must move in there. This bill has been up in other sessions and has always been defeated and I am hoping this will be the case this time. This indicates discriminatory spirit on the part of Chicago toward citizens of metropolitan area who do a great deal toward adding to the city's income in the way of sales tax, gasoline tax and otherwise. I shall do what I can to defeat the bill as in the past. Up to the first of March, 415 bills have been introduced into the House and 212 in the Senate. Committee hearings have been very slow, but I believe that things will begin to move along pretty soon. Obviously many subjects are here which will never get out of committee, but major interests, along the line of relief and economic security, must have attention, and will, before the session is over.

The Insurance Code, which was introduced this week, is a voluminous and important matter. It concerns millions of dollars of investments and will have a hearing before a committee of the whole House in the future, date to be announced later. I shall welcome suggestions from the district in addition to those already received in the way of changes in this bill, if any.

Yours very truly,
Lottie Holman O'Neill.

Mokena Defeats

Wilton Center

Mokena beat Wilton Center two games Sunday. The lights won 36 to 19. Yunker was high point man with 14 points. Walsh was right on his heels with 13 points. Mokena scored the first basket and held the lead clear through the game.

The heavies virtually wiped the other fellows off the floor. Muehler scored 24 baskets and 3 free throws. This is a new record in this district, and might be a new sectional record. Walsh scored 12 baskets. This game was just a reverse of the Mokena-Joliet game Friday night in which they lost 136 to 5. Lahner scored 9 points for Wilton Center. Steber was second with 6 points.

This game was more than a run-away, it was a push-over.

So Long Pliz. S. Williams

O. G. Barrett

Heads County

Rehabilitation Com.

At a meeting in the office of Leo M. Lyons, County Administrator of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, a committee from Cook County, composed of Albert Landmeier, Elk Grove; Chas. Adair, Chicago Heights; J. Fred Meyer, Arlington Heights; Paul T. Sanders, Orland Park and Mr. O. G. Barrett, Farm Adviser, of Arlington Heights, selected as its chairman, Mr. Barrett and as its secretary, Mr. Sanders, having in mind the development of the project known as Rural Rehabilitation which has been given much thought and much consideration.

When we say Rural Rehabilitation we are quite inclined to think of the First Lady of the land, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. She has interested herself in this project considerably.

The various relief agencies have been set up in recent years to provide for the needy by way of giving them food or clothing or shelter in the way of cash or material goods. Later, we have had the CWA and the work relief which were designed to help those unemployed and needy and they in turn render something to the community. We hear in all quarters criticisms and corrections to the plan and without a doubt many of those criticisms are well founded. They have, however, worked the best that they have known how.

Another plan has been suggested and that is to provide for as many of these stranded people as possible particularly those who are affiliated with the farms as farm owners or farm tenants by helping them to carry on in a way which will make them and their families independent units in society.

It is hoped that in the development of this project some of those who might finally be relief clients can be helped by guiding them and aiding them somewhat by loans or finally possibly procuring for them, as has been done in some sections, a home and a modest acreage from which they and their families may produce a part of the living for the family. It is certainly a desirable project if by such means some of our worthy people may be maintained or brought back to an independent position.

There has been completed recently, a Rural Rehabilitation Corporation of Illinois with our good Director of Agriculture, Walter W. McLaughlin as its chairman and with Dean H. W. Mumford of the University of Illinois as its vice-chairman. Mr. C. H. Humphrey who has been very active in the state program of rural relief is secretary of the state corporation. Coming down to county units, we have now set up our county unit with Mr. Barrett as its president, Mr. Sanders as secretary and the committee as named above. It is presumed that this committee will function with a very close relationship to the county relief program with Mr. Lyons as its head and it is now planned that under the direction of a County Rural Rehabilitation Director and such assistants as may be necessary, offices will be established and the work carried on from Blue Island and Arlington Heights, somewhat under the counsel and co-operation of the Farm Bureau.

It was pointed out by Mr. Barrett that this is a long time program and for that reason it has taken longer to get the plan in operation and it no doubt will not operate with the rapidity that many of our people would like to see but we must not sacrifice the quality for quantity in the carrying out of the project.

Some Basic Soups

IN shivery weather like this, sizzling hot savory corn is one of the best bases for salubrious soups. That's good alliteration, but not half as good as some of the soups which we are going to suggest. Here they are:

Cream of Corn Supreme: Simmer the contents of one can corn, one-half cup celery, one slice onion and two cups water together for twenty minutes. Rub through a sieve. Add to two cups thin white sauce and season highly with salt and pepper. Just before serving, add one slightly beaten egg mixed with one cup cream, and heat in double boiler. Serve in bouillon cups with a spoonful of whipped cream on top. Serves eight.

Corn and Lettuce Soup: Sauté one cup shredded lettuce in two tablespoons butter until it starts to brown. Add one cup creamy canned corn and cook gently for five minutes more. Add three cups scalded milk to one cup hot mashed potatoes, add to corn, and season to taste with salt and pepper. Bind with a little flour if desired thicker. Serves six.

Made with Mushrooms

Cream of Corn and Mushroom Soup: Cook the contents of an 11-ounce can corn, three cups milk, one large sliced onion, one small stalk celery and one bay leaf in a double boiler for fifteen minutes, then strain. Cut fine the mushrooms from a 4-ounce can, and sauté them in two tablespoons flour, and stir smooth. Add the mushroom liquor slowly, stirring till thick and creamy. Add to the hot milk mixture and cook again till smooth and creamy. Season to taste with salt and pepper, and add one-half cup cream. Serve in cups. Serves six.

Strong Appeal in Braided Rag Rug

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Braided rugs appeal to many rug makers because the work is simple and requires no tools. They, however, are not as durable as the crocheted rug, owing to the fact that the braided strands are sewed together, and for this reason we advise to sew with a strong waxed thread.

The above "Pin Wheel" rug measures 35 inches and requires about 4 pounds of cotton rag rug material. The center section has a black background and the 3 section design is white. The outer circle and inner center are of hit-and-miss mixed colors.

Cut strips 1½ inches wide. Fold edges under and then fold again to make a strip about one-half inch wide. Use three strips in braiding.

Start in the center and sew 8 rows of braid around, keeping work flat. Start next row on opposite side of where the previous row ended. Work around, changing colors for 9 rows, as illustrated. To change color sew strips of new color desired to the ones in use. Start again at different place for 8 outside rows, then sew on the last row separately. This rug has 26 rows.

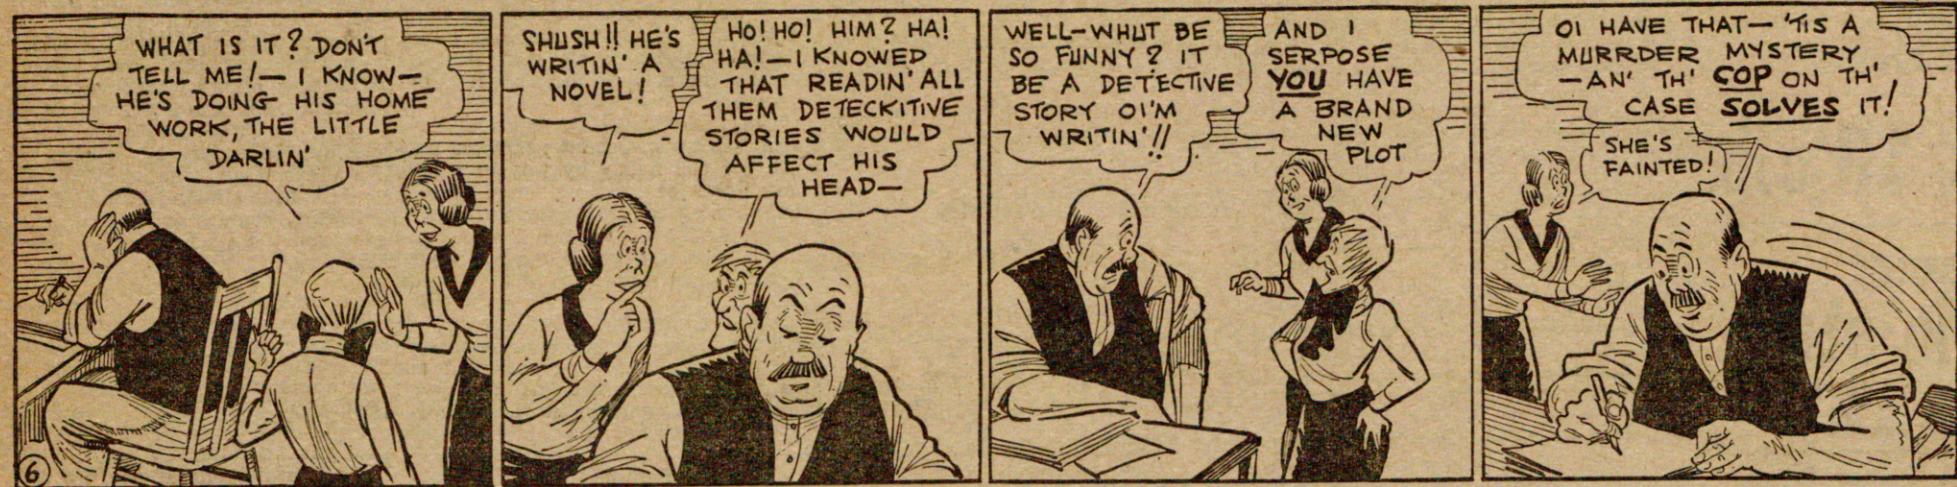

If you are interested in making rag rugs, send 15c to our Rug Department for book No. 25, which contains 26 rugs in braiding and crochet. Instructions are given with each rug, also directions for braiding and crocheting rugs and how to prepare your rugs into strips to get the best results.

GREEN CANARIES

Little Dorothy had a canary at home, and one day she went out to tea with her mother. In the room was a cage containing a pair of bright green little birds. Dorothy kept looking at them and presently asked:

"Mummie, what's the matter with those canaries? Aren't they ripe?"—

Once Was Enough

Two women were waiting for a bus, which was nearly full when it came along.

"Room for one inside and one on top," said the conductor.

"I did once," replied the conductor, as he rang the bell, "but never again."—London Tit-Bits.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, which he names "Penelope," in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. Ten-year-old Penelope is given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin. At a baseball game a ball strikes Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin retires from business, wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is won over despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

"A normal weight, your honor." He took the girl's hand and counted her pulse. She took a stethoscope from his pocket, placed it against her left breast and listened. Her pulse and heart beat normally, your honor, and from her appearance of general good health we have no reason to suspect pulmonary trouble. Her skin is clear, soft and smooth; it is free from blemishes—another indication of good health. Her hair is fine and lustrous; not dry and lifeless, as is the case of a person of pronounced psychopathic tendencies. Her eyes are full, lambent, kindly, intelligent. Her brow is full, broad and of medium height, her head a little larger than that of the average woman, and she is broad between the ears—because, as she has brains, nature ordained that she should have room for them. She is neatly dressed and decidedly not a slattern. She gives no indication of dissipation—drugs or alcohol. But mark her nose. It is a grand wreck. A nose like that would cause a continuous mental conflict in any woman.

"But for this lamentable facial defect, this girl would be beautiful. Perhaps she remembers, or used to remember, herself as beautiful or attractive; then this accident occurred and lo, she became an ugly duckling. She brooded upon her misfortune; she wept over it, doubtless she thought it very hard that God should afflict her so. Doubtless the knowledge that she was an object of curiosity or derision to strangers and repugnance to her friends made of her a gloomy, depressed recluse. Who knows what wild, desperate and desolate thoughts she became a prey to? Mental conflicts undoubtedly were at work—an impulse to run away, to hide herself, countered by the natural impulse to make the best of the situation, to be brave, to pretend she was not different.

"In the case of a girl whose mind and nerves had been thus harassed over a long period, a new sorrow, constituting a definite mental shock, even if of no great magnitude, might nevertheless be sufficient to bring about the condition of dissociation of personality which I have described."

"Anything else, Doctor Burt?"

"I have given a concise and general outline of the case as it presents itself to me, your honor. This defendant should have treatment. It is quite possible to cure her and I am morally certain I could do so. Her saddle nose can be repaired. I have a very good friend, a specialist in plastic surgery, and I know he would be willing to help, without charge, to make a swan of this ugly duckling."

"And you think you would make her over into a responsible moral citizen?"

"I think so, your honor."

"How would she support herself during the period of treatment? By theft—or worse?" The judge glanced at Nance Belden. "How do you support yourself, young woman?"

"I carry my own check-book," the girl replied.

"You have a private income?"

"Sure, old thing."

"What is its source?"

"I don't know. On the first of every month somebody puts some money in the bank for me and I check against it."

"And that's all you know about it, eh?"

"Sometimes I can remember, but I can't now. It's the time I can't remember that raises h—l with me, Judge. I don't know what name to sign to my checks then or I forget I have a checking account. Then I get hard up and steal."

"How truly remarkable, Miss Belden! Have you ever issued any checks that bounced back on you?"

"Say, are you trying to kid me, Whiskers?"

The judge ignored this obvious contempt of court. "I suppose you have had many sweethearts, Miss Belden?"

Nance Belden's scornful laughter filled the courtroom. "Oh, Judge, you're precious. What sort of a man would pick me for a sweetheart, I ask you? Be yourself, Judge. Now you tell one."

"Why not?" the judge pursued remorselessly.

"Well, maybe because nobody ever asked me," the girl assured him with simple directness. "I don't mind admitting I'd like to have a nice sweetie if I could find one, but what the h—l's the use trying? I'd only have him a little while; then he'd get ashamed of me. What's the use bothering myself? I know a blind fellow that's mad about me. I've often thought of taking the poor gazabo on for my steady sweetie, but he makes me so sad I know it wouldn't last. He has that funny staring look, and when he walks with his arms held straight out, it just breaks my heart."

"Where does he live?"

"God knows—now. I was taking care of him when I got pinched. You see, Judge, I took him to a doctor to see if something couldn't be done for his poor eyes, and the doctor said he could be cured, but it would be expensive. He'd have to go east to a very noted specialist, who would charge a lot for the operation. Well, I paid that doctor his bill and that left me short."

"Did the same doctor say anything to you about your nose?"

"Yes, he said he could cure that himself, and to come in when I was ready and he'd put me in a hospital and operate. Gosh, it's some baby, isn't it, Judge?"

"How did it happen?"

"I don't know."

"You don't know anything, do you?"

"Yes, I know something."

"What is it?"

"You haven't the slightest intention of agreeing with Steve. That sheep-faced mutt, Blethen, has given you an earful. You're one of these judges that believes what he wants to believe. Steve's told you I'm nutty, but Steve's wrong. I'm not. Steve's just a good fellow trying to give the little girl a hand."

"So you believe you're quite sane?"

"Of course I am. There's nothing wrong with me except a bad memory, and a weak like the American eagle."

Stephen sighed and shook his head, seeing which, Nance crossed to his side, put her arm around his neck, and laid her cheek against his. "Steve, darling, you'd be a wonderful sweetheart," she assured him, and laughed.

"If You're a Good Girl, Nance, I'll Not Put the Cuffs on You."

"Your honor," Stephen pleaded, "can't you see she's—"

"I can see she's as intelligent as you say she is, Doctor. In fact, she's more than that. She is very artfully simulating mental irresponsibility by attempting to spoil the good work of her expert witness. It is my conviction that Doctor Blethen was right when he told me she was the smartest, most adroit criminal type he had ever examined. I believe, with him, that she is incorrigible, and incorrigible criminals should be set apart from society."

He turned to his clerk. "I believe the sentence was two years in San Quentin penitentiary. Verify it and prepare the commitment."

"Good G—d," Stephen Burt cried sharply, "you are not going to commit this social outrage, your honor?"

The judge eyed him sourly. "Doctor Burt, you will apologize to the court for that language or I shall fine you fifty dollars for contempt of court."

Stephen Burt drew a fifty-dollar bill from his pocketbook and tossed it on the table.

"Court is adjourned," his honor mumbled, much embarrassed.

The policeman who had brought Nance Belden into Superior court approached her. "If you're a good girl, Nance, I'll not put the cuffs on you."

"You didn't put them on me coming here; so why should you think it necessary now?"

"You're an important prisoner now, Nance. The judge just gave you two years in San Quentin, didn't he?"

Nance Belden turned. "Did he, Steve?"

The doctor nodded miserably. "And I'll not see you any more, Steve?"

"Of course you shall Nance. I'll come to see you from time to time. I haven't finished with you—not by a long shot, my dear. Tyrrell, you're still retained on this case."

The lawyer waved his hand hopelessly. "We're licked," he stated, without emotion. "This is one hand no lawyer can beat, and I wouldn't try." And Tyrrell shook hands with Stephen and Nance Belden, put on his hat and strode out.

"Come, girlie," the policeman suggested.

"Well," the girl declared, with an effort at nonchalance, "this is a tough break for old lady Belden, isn't it?" She smiled upon him patronizingly. "You're a good scout, Steve. Thanks a lot for all you've done and tried to do. You meant well, but at that I think the old scientific hooey has got you a bit cuckoo, too. I stood for it a while because I thought his nibs might fall for it, but when I saw you weren't going to get to first base with the big boob I called it no contest." She thrust out her little hand. "Well good-by, Steve. I suppose I'm keeping you from other nuts."

She came close to him and looked up at him wistfully; so he stooped and kissed her. At once tears suffused her eyes. "You don't mind what I look like, do you, Doctor Burt? You're kind enough not to feel sorry for me."

Amazingly she had changed—slipped out of one personality into the other as one slips out of a coat. "Will you do something for me, Doctor?" she continued, and he saw that she was all nerves now. "I'm looking for a girl named Penelope. I can't remember her last name, but I do wish you'd try to find her for me, even with so little to go on."

"Where does she live, Nance?"

"Out there, somewhere."

"You've been reading a poem, I think, Nance—a poem that runs:

And you, my sweet Penelope, out there somewhere you wait for me,
With buds of roses in your hair and kisses on your mouth.

She trembled with eagerness. "Why, you know her, Doctor. That's the Penelope I'm looking for."

"Oh, if that's the Penelope, why of course I'll find her for you. Good-by, my poor dear girl, and remember to look for me at the gate the day you're released from San Quentin."

A deputy sheriff took Nance Belden to San Quentin and was decent enough to refrain from handcuffing her en route. The girl was not particularly sad. Indeed she appeared to enjoy the brief trip across the bay in the ferry boat, and the half hour's journey by train to Greenbrae, where the prison bus meets arriving deputy sheriffs and their charges. Even the first glimpse of the penitentiary did not disturb her, for the road that enters the grounds is flanked by the homes of the officials and guards, and well-kept lawns and flower gardens give no hint of the gloom that lies in waiting beyond the main gate.

She was taken first to the warden's office, from here she was passed on to another officer where she was measured by the Bertillon system, thumb-printed and photographed, after which a guard escorted her over to the women's wing of the prison.

The building in which female convicts are housed at San Quentin would readily be mistaken for a hospital were it not for the bars at the windows and the high metal mesh fence that surrounds the grounds. Two young women were hoeing in the flower beds; along the cement walks other women strolled, singly or in pairs, chatting and enjoying the sunshine and fresh salt breeze that blew in from the bay, less than fifty yards distant. About two hundred yards off the beach, some men in skiffs were fishing for striped bass, and with the exception of a guard in a kiosk at the entrance to the grounds, one would have to search in vain for the slightest hint of official surveillance.

"So this is San Quentin," Nance remarked gaily to her escort. "Not so bad, my boy, not so bad."

The guard did not answer. He knew that the realization of restriction rather than high walls constitutes the horror of prison life. He took her into a small lobby, where a pleasant-faced, middle-aged matron greeted the girl cordially.

"Come with me, Nance," she said, and led the girl into her office, where she took charge of Nance's suitcase, opened it and searched it thoroughly. "You have nice clothes and toilet articles," she commented. "Have you more clothes at home? These will scarcely last two years."

"Yes. May I send for them?" asked Nance eagerly.

"Of course you may. The women inmates of San Quentin are not required to wear a prison uniform, although we furnish one if necessary."

"Hurrah for our side," Nance replied cheerfully.

"You read and write, of course, Nance?"

"Do I look like a dumb-bell?"

"Well,"—patiently—"here are the prison rules. Read them, and then obey them strictly. Failure to obey them will lead to disciplinary measures, and repeated infractions may lead to solitary confinement. If you prove to be a good girl, you'll receive credit for good behavior in the shape of a reduction in the length of your sentence. Good conduct will also render you eligible for parole after you have served half of your sentence; if you should get into trouble, tell me about it first. I try to give my girls a square deal, but very few of them try to give me one. If you should think you're not being treated fairly, I'll always be glad to discuss your grievances with you. You will meet some terrible women here and you will also meet some who, had they been spared the unfortunate circumstances which conducted to bring them here, would be ladies. Conviction doesn't mean that a person is devoid of all human attributes. You will keep your person and your cell clean. You will not be locked in your cell unless you misbehave. Your cell—it is really a nice little room—will be sacred to you alone, and you will have the freedom of the building and grounds. I will assign you to a cell and show you up to it. Then you can change your clothes and come down and join the women in the recreation room yonder."

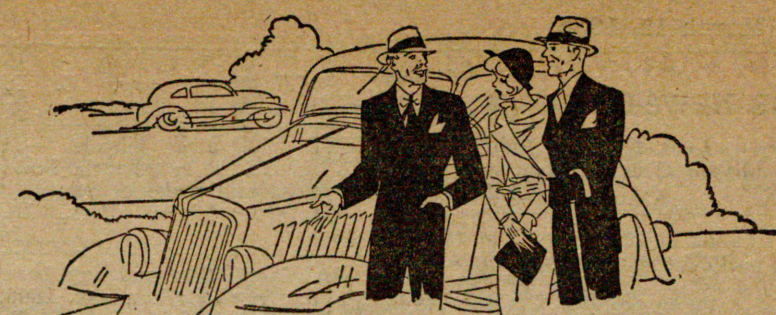

TO BE CONTINUED.

Discovery May Lead to Victory Over Cancer

The growth of the human infant, the chick in the egg, bacteria and the toad can all be represented by the same mathematical equation. Dr. Norman C. Wetzel, associate professor of pediatrics at Western Reserve University Medical school, told the National Academy of Sciences. Proper interpretation of this mathematical equation of growth, Doctor Wetzel said, eventually might lead to conquest of cancer, since cancer was a growth problem—a situation in which body cells grew without restraint. The equation, which is what mathematicians call a second degree differential, represents the relation between heat production and growth, he added.

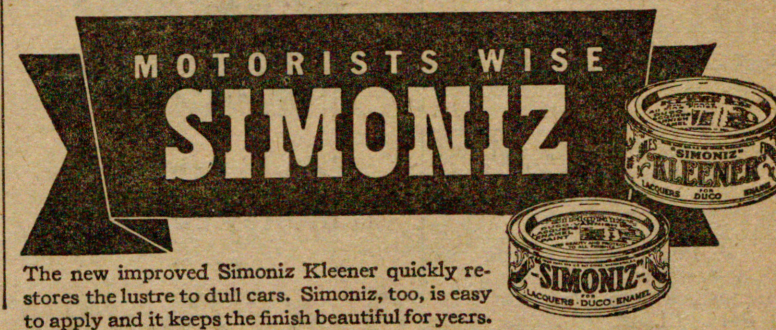

Four factors, he found, were involved in growth. One encourages growth, a second retards or inhibits growth, the third is the net external work of growth. He calls the fourth the "coefficient of inertia growth." In cancer, Doctor Wetzel said, it was evident that the factor which retarded growth was not operating.

He urged that medical science embark on a study of the influence of various hormones, vitamins and the like, with a view to fitting them into their proper places in the equation of growth.—David Dietz. Scripps-Howard Science Editor, in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

There is one thing sure... that isn't true so far, at least, as Officer Finney is concerned.

You know Finney—Finney of the Force—whose comical adventures are portrayed for readers of this paper by Ted O'Loughlin, brilliant young artist.

This genial copper gets a lot of fun out of the things that happen day by day as he travels his beat, and the fun is passed on to you as you read of his activities.

Have a laugh with Finney and tell your friends about him.
